Data Backup & Disaster Recovery Systems

Is your data really protected? Can you retrieve lost or damaged files? is your business prepared for a disaster? If not, the consequences can be severe…

- Expense of recreating information
- Loss of customer confidence
- Damage to competitive position
- Risk of non-compliance with government mandates
- Exposure to legal liability
- Harm to public image

It's Your Business

A business can grind to a halt when critical data is lost. That's why many businesses have processes in place to backup their files on a regular basis. But onsite storage of backup files may not be enough after a fire or some other local catastrophe. A combination of on-site and off-site data backup provides the highest level of protection. With on-site storage, a crashed server can be restored to full production in minutes. With off-site storage, you can get to your data if you need to work at an alternate location.

What We Offer

- Off-site storage of data backups of file servers, website, email, and other systems
- Continuous on-site data protection and archiving
- Recovery testing of backup data stored on- and off-site
- Access to backup data by remote offices and teleworkers over secure connections
- Full service setup across all of office locations
